“ I remember you seeing me on the train when you were moving back to MA. (Okay you recognized me) I remember the resource room and Mrs. Durkin. I know I did not know you very well but I really enjoyed your father in church and him telling me about the picture he took of the stained glass window in St. James. I remember running into you at the Groton Public Library. I know you told me your father passed away. I know your with your father now. Tell him I said hello. Although I did not know you really well, you will be missed and thought of. I did not know a lot of people in school but you will be missed because you were one of the few that recognized me although I did not recognize you.

“ I grew up swimming at the “West Groton beach” with Elizabeth and her family. The Squannacook provided just about all of our summer needs, with additional fun being supplemented by George Sr whom piled us all in the wagon and drove us to Ayer to see movies he'd arranged at the officer's club.

Both Elizabeth and I spent the majority of our 20s far from home. We both returned around 2005 as single mothers with young boys, seeking the support and care that our families could provide.

Elizabeth and I provided for each other much comic relief in the face of struggle. We took many car rides with no destination in mind, just long enough to get our sarcasm and wit whipped up into a frenzy that always ended in shared laughter, ultimately providing much needed relief from the daily stress of our lives.

Elizabeth and her dad were both stars at the Clover Farm market where Jan Hearst generously allowed me to host open mics.

Elizabeth had a stand up comedy routine and George never failed to move a crowd with his magic tricks.

Her battle with being sick was so humbling to witness, and over so many years. My heart is heavy with her absence, and for her grieving dear family, but I know she has been healed. Finally. ❤️

Go with God, dear friend. Much love and respect,
Emilie Faucher
