“ Kim we are sad about your mom. Many times thought of going to see her but those memories of my mon came out and never got there. Your mom and mine will meet in heaven and have some good laughs together. We all had horses in common and you mom was so very very proud of you. We also shared good memories of getting together with our other relatives at your grand moms house to chit chat which we all loved. Your mom was very strong to have held on for all those years and so were you and your family. Just remember all the fun and good memories you shared with her. I am so glad Robin and you kept in touch through Facebook and Robin kept me up to date since we do not do Facebook.

Regards to all your family and sympathy.

“ Kim,
Reading your mom's obituary was heartwarming heartbreak, if that makes any sense. I was with my mom, also 77, when I saw your email about your mom's passing, which made the pain I felt for you resonate even more deeply. She shares my love of my horsey and we are often looking for deals at yard sales and flea markets together. It's not fair that you were robbed of your mom so young, especially knowing that during her last years you were already missing her. I hope you find peace knowing that she has found hers.
